Joy Silver, Visionary and Advocate for the "Second Fifty Years" Lesbian, Gay, Bi-Sexual and Transgender Community, in Vancouver February 8th

Vancouver, BC – Returning to the closet need not be the way for gays and lesbians living their “second fifty years” in Vancouver, thanks to local businessmen Dean Malone and Darren Stolz of Plum Living Properties and Health Services Inc. and their partnership with RainbowVision Properties.

Plum Living provides home health care services and has joined with RainbowVision Properties, a US-based developer of lifestyle communities, to develop a progressive living community for lesbians, gays, bisexual, transgendered (LGBT) people and friends in Vancouver.

On February 8th, Joy Silver, President and CEO of RainbowVision Properties will be in Vancouver with Plum Living, and together they are speaking with more than 150 stakeholders and prospective community residents to answer questions and share plans for RainbowVision Vancouver.

Joy Silver and Dean Malone, President and CEO of Plum Living Properties and Health Services, are available for interviews on Friday, February 8th.
